Book : "Give Me a Hug: based on the True Story of a Limbless Australian"

Motivational Speaker, Nick Vujicic"

Give me a hug is a meaningful story. It is written by Nick Vujicic and it is about his experiences. When he was born, everyone was shocked because he had no arms and no legs, that means he has phocomelia. His parents did not abandon him, they love and care for him. He was a hardworking student and had good marks in primary school. But he had to go to a new school when he was 12. At the new school, the classes were very hard and he could not keep up, so his grades started falling. One day, he was bullied by 12 classmates and he said, "If one more person laughs at me today, I'll just give up on my life!" The school day finally ended and he left the school. His 12-year-old mother thought she was the 13 person who laughed at him. She said, "Hey, Nick, you did great today! She encouraged Nick and Nick cheered up.

Although a lot of people said he was phocomelia, he was a 100% chicken dinner! When he was 12, he taught me to type with the two toes on his "chicken dinner!" After several years, we both are successful and we can prove why he can do all these things! He became a writer and a motivational speaker. He said, "I feel the first time I always use a different method and try again, until he succeed.

I have learnt perseverance from Nick. He never gives up on his life.
