DOUBLE Taxation Treaties and Their Implications for Investment : What Investment Policymakers Need to Know. Geneva : United Nations, 2024.	UN 336.2 DOU
---	-----------------------------

Double taxation is more common in cross-border business activities and thus relevant treaties are necessary to maintain fair and flexible investment field. This publication assists governments and policymakers to understand the provision of existing double taxation treaties and recommends certain implications, based on Model Conventions of the UN and the OECD, on investment protection and enhancement.

INTERNATIONAL Export Regulations and Controls : Navigating the Global Framework beyond WTO Rules. Geneva, Switzerland : World Trade Organization, c2023.	GATT 382.64 INT
---	--------------------------------

World Trade Organisation (WTO) emphasises the need to control and regulate trades of high-risk goods through implementation measures such as export licences and restrictions. This publication overviews particular international protocols and regular conventions to manage the export of high-risk and controlled products and indicates their compatibility with WTO rules in concerned areas. It serves as a guide for governments and policy makers to reduce risks from this kind of trades.

NARROWING the Disaster Risk Protection Gap in Central Asia.
Manila, Philippines : Asian Development Bank, 2022.

ADB
339.53
NAR

Risk of natural disasters of flooding and earthquakes are increasing in Central Asian countries and their lack of financial protection has become the major problem. This publication advocates the approach of cooperation among Central Asian countries to overcome the problem. It compares the existing policies of each country and analyses ways to narrow their financial protection gap, and thus strengthen the regional resistance against the natural disasters through efficient risk transfer.

STU

This publication studies the case of Republic of Moldova, which summarises its trade environment under effect of WTO Agreement on Trade Facilitation and other barriers. It further elaborates the weaknesses of the national economic framework and recommends reforming measures. It also suggests application of existing UNECE tools to support such reforms.

TRADE in Processed Food.
Geneva : United Nations, 2024.

UN
338.1
TRA

People nowadays have great demands on processed food and relevant health issues have gained more concerns than ever. This paper is jointly published by United Nations and World Health Organisation and organised its content in three parts. First part investigates the trend of global food supply chain of processed food from origin to final consumption. Second part addressed the relations of processed food consumption to nutrition-related diseases. Third part is a comprehensive guide for countries to establish policies for ensuring access to safe and nutritious processed food via good market.
